

We are KPMG

10 am, Wednesday. Dick and Kari have just finished a conference call with one of our US offices. They have been discussing the next steps for a retail client with substantial business operations in Asia. Working for the Tax Efficient Supply Chain Management (TESCM) and the Global Transfer Pricing Services (GTPS) unit respectively, Dick and Kari are examining the client's business model on a global scale to see how they can improve the supply chain from a tax and transfer pricing perspective.

Dick and Kari bring together their skill sets to help organizations improve their business models and tax structures. They enjoy collaborating with our people from different business areas and offices around the world, drawing on the unique strengths of them, creating synergy and bringing out the best of KPMG.

This is the KPMG of today: a firm that brings together business units, services, people and ideas. By working as one team, we combine our talents to go one step further. We create an environment where knowledge is shared and a strong team spirit is fostered, which makes KPMG a great place to work.

We are people who think beyond the present, see beyond borders, and work with clients to deliver long-lasting value.
